

Moonlight

Find me in the moonlight when all your doubts come in, when all your feelings are untamed, and when you can't rest because the sounds in your head won't let you sleep.
Find me in the moonlight when everything is not completely dark but seems so different that it appears unknown, when the shadows won't let you realize who was holding your back.
Find me in the moonlight when you miss a hug, a kiss, or a goodnight, and others won't call it moonlight because this world won't be as poetic as the moonlight that delights my nights.
Find me in the moonlight, there where the ocean ends, where the world seems so small that you can remember that my light was enough to make your nights bright.