

Steele Brook

The water ran like
twilight unfolding in currents of a scattered brood of clouds, evening rippling the reflection
at the edge of the bank where river rocks lay
close to the grassed
shadow of a boy.